Data Privacy Statement

1. Processing of data as a result of visiting our website

As rule, it is possible to use our website without providing personal data. Only the data provided by your internet provider, in particular your IP address, are used. In addition, the date and time of your accessing our website as well as information on the type of computer or mobile device you are using, your operating system, and your browser, including language settings, are saved. We are not able to attribute the data to specific individuals. These data are stored for a maximum of three months. The data are processed exclusively for the purposes of enabling you to use our website as well as for statistical purposes. Some of these data are transmitted to Google Inc. (see Section 2 below for more details) for the purposes of analyzing the usage of our website.

In order to provide you with an optimal user experience when you visit our website, we use session cookies and permanent cookies. All session cookies are deleted upon closing of your browser. Permanent cookies remain functional for up to 24 months. Cookies are small files that contain an identification number we have attributed to you. When you visit our website, cookies are saved to your computer or your mobile device. This identification number allows us to recognize your computer if you revisit our website. Cookies improve navigation of our website and help us to tailor your website experience to your needs. Naturally, you may also use our website without cookies. Most browsers accept cookies automatically, however; in order to prevent this, you must adjust your browser settings. The settings must be adjusted individually for every browser you use.

2. Usage of Google Analytics and location services

We use the services provided by Google Analytics of Google Inc., 1600 Amphitheatre Parkway Mountain View, CA 94043, USA. This service enables analysis of the usage of our website; this is made possible via the use of cookies. The information collected via the cookies, such as your anonymized IP address, is transmitted by us to a server operated by Google Inc. in the USA, where it is stored and analyzed for this purpose. As a rule, your IP address is anonymized via shortening; the shortening is carried out by Google Inc. inside the territory of the European Union or within another state party to agreements of the European Economic Area. In exceptional cases, your IP address may be transmitted to a server of Google Inc. located in the USA and anonymized there instead. The IP address transmitted in such cases is not combined with any other data from Google Inc.

You can withdraw at any time your permission for your data to be recorded by Google Analytics. To do so, you have the following options:

- You can prevent the use of cookies via the browser settings mentioned above; in this case, however, you may not be able to use all functions of our website.
- You can also prevent the recording and analysis of these data by Google Inc. by downloading and installing the add-on available at the following link:
